Kings Weston Action Group

The Kings Weston Action Group has been set up to protect the Kings Weston Park and House, fight for its future, and protect its past.

Kings Weston House in North Bristol is a nationally important building designed by Sir John Vanbrugh - one of this country's greatest architects. It is largely overlooked by many people even in the City and, although leased as a conference venue, remains at the heart of the estate. Its grounds, including Penpole Wood, are now public parkland but have been neglected and overgrown for too long and many of their historic features already lost.

We are a group of volunteers formed from local people, users of the park, and anyone interested in the conservation of this Grade II listed landscape and the Grade I listed house and we intend to:

- promote the historic importance of the park across the city
- take direct action to maintain and conserve the park
- lobby the City Council and help inform new conservation and improvement plans
- monitor the condition of the grounds, and Grade I Listed House and garden buildings
- identify and apply for funding to develop the park into a first-class green space for everyone

Do you use the estate? Do you live close by? Or do you just admire the house? What do YOU want to see happen here and can you lend any time to help out?
